

Science On Tap

Wednesday, March 4, 6:30 pm
at the Minocqua Brewing Company

Native Plant Gardening for Pollinators

Patrick Goggin is part of the UW-Extension Lakes Partnership Program. Patrick engages lake citizens and tribal, state and county agencies to help protect lakes. Patrick has been interested in gardening for many decades and has created spectacular native gardens at his home in Phelps, WI.

Join us on Wednesday night to talk about gardening with native plants in the Northwoods.

Funding for Science on Tap-Minocqua is provided by a grant from the Brittingham Fund to the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Don't forget you can always watch the event on your computer, tablet or smartphone by clicking the Watch Science On Tap live button on our website at: www.scienceontapminocqua.org

The event is also streamed live at the Minocqua Library

Sponsored by:

DOWNTOWN ON LAKE MINOCQUA
WWW.SCIENCEONTAPMINOCQUA.ORG

Interested in dinner? Please arrive by 5 pm & mention "Science on Tap" to receive a 10% discount.